e Question About its Legal Loca Charleston.

Six:-Since the formation of the State wheels. It is still there. The same old truck that once rolled it to Charleston and then rolled it back again is still ready for then rolled it back again is still ready for duty—so thought to be.

But it may need some repairs before the contemplated trip is undertaken.

The periodical agiation of Capital-removal-schemes is an irrepressible impulse in this State, and it rolls round with the regularity and certainty of the planets. Another one is upon us: This time it comes with the force of a Manitoba wave. It takes in not only the Capital, but the University and probably the Asylums and whatever public institutions are thought to be susceptible of transportation. Charleston itself seems to have caught

O be susceptible of transportation.

Oharleston itself seems to have caught the impulse. Having for some years reposed in the assurance that it was already the Capital—de jure, if not de facto—it, too, we half inclined to a change. Charleston people are reported as having expressed themselves as not right cortain that it was eyer seriously contamulated received.

But the more pertinent and provise ques-ion which will be raised in this recurring HAS THE CAPITAL BEEN LEGALLY LOCATED

MAS THE CAPITAL BEEN LEGALLY LOCATED AT CHARLESTON?.

We believe that a majority of the people so regard it, but lawyers know that it has not been legally located at Charleston. What, then, are the legal obstacles in the way? We propose to state them briefly, but in a manner that can be understood by all.

act by which is supposed Charleston ob-tained title to the Capital. It is sufficient tained title to the Capital. It is sufficient for our purpose to state that it provided first, for submitting the question of a location to be voted on by the people, and secondly, by a separate and independent section, it provided that when the location was fixed and determined, "The Board of Public Works should procure a suitable site on which to erect the necessary public buildings for the use of the State * * * and in order to further aid in carrying into effect the provisions of this section, a sum of money, not exceeding fifty thousand dollars, is hereby appropriated and placed at the disposal of said Board, * * The sum hereby appropriated may be expended by the said Board either in the erection of a new capital building, if that should be need and capital building, if that should be necessary, or in making repairs and additions to or alterations in any pub-lic buildings which may be upon the site

It will be observed that this act con-people.

The people were to pass upon the location simply, and then the second provision was intended as a kind of after-clap to seal their choice.

This latter provision was supposed to

Into latter provision was supposed to furnish elements of permanency. It was thought that after the erection of buildings and the expenditure of $50,000 of the State's money, the people would not be disposed to forfeit the investment by another rem val.

- THE DOUBLE ENTENDRE. It is this twofold purpose or object of the bill to which we now wish to direct at-tention. They are intrinsically and palgably, distinct and independent propositions and have been acted on as such. The first was submitted to the people, the second was committed to the Board of Public Works. The one is complete without the other. There may be a Capital without a Copitol—a seat of gov-Capital without a Copitol—a seat of gov-ernment without the necessary buildings. The purpose in the one case may be pur-sued and expressed without any reference to or provision for the other, as was done by the people under this bill. They are distinct objects, involving distinct and in-dependent floristication and provision. The whole people might be favorable to the one while diametrically opposed to the one while diametrically opposed to the other. There might have been specia reasons for selecting a site for a Capitol o be apparent to the most casual reader f the one had been complete without unit, and is a restrictive term employed in this connection to protect a principle from just such infringements as occur in this bill.

But leaving this defect of the bill at this point, we pass to notice one other defect which puts it beyond the reach of law or logic to cure, and needs but to be stated to appear conclusive.

The following story—which is attracting wide attention from the press—is so remarkable that we cannot excuse ourselves if we do not lay it before our readers, even though its length would ordinarily preclude its admission to our limited space.

OF CHARLESTON.

The same clause of the Constitution which declares that "No act hereafter passed shall embrace more than one object," declares also, "and that shall be expressed in the title."

While the title to the bill in question is bold enough to express two objects— which brings it under the objection already noticed—it is still insufficient to already noticed—it is still insufficient to cover the scope of the act itself. In other words, the act is broader than the title. The title is framed as follows:

"An act providing for the location of a permanent seat of government for this State, and the erection of the necessary public buildings for the use of the State."

The decisions of the courts have been uniform upon the point that wherever a Constitution requires the object of the act to be stated in the title, everything is excluded from effect and operation as law ciuded from effect and operation as law which is incorporated in the body of the act, but is not named in the title. There act, but is not named in the title. There is another principle in law which makes it necessary that where a title begins to enumerate the contents of an act, all its contents must be stated in detail; for it is implied that any enumeration includes the whole contents, and thus many things which might be included in an act under a general title will be excluded from operators if the title names a part but quite. began. Still I thought nothing of it; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times neuralgic, pain in one side of my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid little attention to it. Then my stomach would get out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet, even as a physician, I did not think that these things meant anything serious. I fancied I was suffering from malaria and doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scam appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accussioned to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their visiciity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

effect of these principles of law upon the bill in question. The Constitution has made the title the conclusive index to the legislative intent as to what shall The title must afford peration in a bill. complete clue to its contents.

a complete cine to its contents.

Now, will anyone asy, from the reading of the title already quoted, that he is informed or can divine or infer from it that formed or can divine or infer from it that the seventh section of the bill contains among several other distinct provisions, a clause appropriating $50,000 to be expended by the Board of Public Works in providing public buildings? That legislator must have lad a very vivid imagination who gathered that fact from the title of the bill. Wherein does it recite any appropriation. Yet it does begin to recite. It names the location and public buildings, but stops short of naming that little appropriation.

cite. It names the location and public buildings, but stops short of naming that little appropriation.

CONSTITUTION VIOLATED.

Thus is the Constitutional provision violated or it is meaningless. The object of the Constitution is to apprize the legislator who makes the law, and the constitution is to apprize the legislator who makes the law, and the constitution with the state of the Constitution is to apprize the legislator and contents of the act, in order that there may be no deception and that publication may attract the attention of the ecople.

An act which appropriates money and does not mention it in the title, must certainly fall under this prohibition of the constitution if it has any force, any meaning. There is no other item of a bill that the so much as an appropriation for money. There is no other subject of legislation the people watch with so much care; and they are entitled to know.

Money was not necessary to designate the location of the Capital under this bill. Money was not absolutely necessary to provide buildings—they might have been donated, as they were in Wheeling. Yet money is included in the bill—but not in the title. The title dees not give the legislator or the people any hint of money. Three-fourths of the neople, doubtless, voted on a location without a suspicion that they were also in effect, voting an appropriation of $50,000.

Can we, Mr. Editor and public and provide buildings—the order of the neople any hint of money. Three-fourths of the neople, doubtless, voted on a location without a suspicion that they were also in effect, voting an appropriation of $50,000.

If the one had been complete without the other it would not have been possible to divide the bill and submit one part to the people and not submit the other part. It is this double purpose or duplicity of the bill which invalidates it. And yet, if a few years previous any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, and weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I feit when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began.
